

ORCID License and Use Guidelines

Approved by ORCID Board 26 March 2013

All content created by ORCID, including our Public Data File and other data sets, as well as outreach resources, slide decks, and other online materials, are available under a Creative Commons CC0 1.0 Universal public domain dedication. This means that ORCID makes no copyright, related or neighboring rights claims to the content. Consistent with this broad waiver, ORCID does not impose any conditions on access to and use of our content. However, we remind you that ORCID can only waive rights that it owns; therefore, (i) the waiver does not apply to resources that are listed by links in an ORCID record, for example, journal articles, and (ii) the underlying data elements remain subject to any rights of the individuals featured, including rights of privacy and publicity. In respect of those individuals and in order to maximize the usefulness of this resource for the entire research and scholarly communications community, we request that you follow these community norms in using our content:

- Spread the Word: Please give attribution to ORCID as the source of the Public Data File and link back to this page (<https://orcid.org/content/orcid-public-data-file>) where technologically feasible, to facilitate access for others.
- Be Fair and Lawful: Do not modify any data so as to make it false, incomplete, defamatory, or misleading.
- Respect Others: Respect the rights of privacy and publicity of the individuals featured in the Public Data File. In particular, do not use email to send junk mail, chain mail, spam, pyramid schemes, or other unsolicited bulk mail. If you are using email for commercial or other purposes, give people the opportunity to opt-out of receiving communications from you.
- Keep us posted: We are very interested in hearing about ways in which people are making use of the Public Data File. Please contact us at support@orcid.org if you are willing to share your experiences.

Consistent with a CC0 waiver, ORCID-created content is free for use, but it is also free of any warranties or guarantees that might come with a commercial license. ORCID accepts no liability for your use of our content. For more details, please see the terms of the Creative Commons CC0 1.0 Universal public domain dedication.

Please note that the CC0 waiver does not apply to use of the ORCID, Inc. name, the ORCID® service mark, and other ORCID marks and logos. For additional information about permissible use of the ORCID name, marks, and logos, please see our Trademark and iD Display Guidelines Policy.