Edit

In the next few weeks, authors with an ORCID iD will be able to have Crossref automatically push information about their published work to their ORCID record. It's something that ORCID users have been asking for and we're pleased to be the first to develop the integration. 230 publishers already include ORCID iDs in their metadata deposits with us, and currently there are 248,000 DOIs that include ORCID iDs.

What this means for researchers

More visibility for your work! Crossref represents over 5000 scholarly publishers and many of them ask authors for their ORCID ID and include it in the publication information they send us. Also it will mean less manual searching and adding; you've always been able to search crossref metadata for your name and/or publications and manually add them to your ORCID record, this auto-update simply means that when your publishers include the info we can update and add work(s) to your ORCID record automatically for you. You can still choose to hide/show whatever works you choose, and, of course, you'll have the opportunity to authorize or switch off the integration

FOLLOW US

HELLO

We are Crossref, a not-for-profit membership organization for scholarly publishing working to make content easy to find, cite, link, and assess. We do it in five ways: rallying the community; tagging metadata; running a shared infrastructure; playing with new technology; and making tools and services to improve research communications.

It's as simple—and as complicated—as that.

If you authorize Crossref and DataCite to update your ORCID profile and you add your ORCID to your paper or dataset submission

ORCID

when your publication gets a DOI, your ORCID profile will get updated

AUTOMATICALLY!

What is Crossref ORCID Auto-Update?

- When publishers deposit an author's ORCID with the article metadata, Crossref will request long-term permission from that author to post works to their ORCID record.
- Once permission is granted, Crossref will automatically post these works to the authors record and any future publications from any Crossref member.
- Any article deposited with an author's ORCID in the past will also get automatically pushed to the record after permission has been granted.

▼ CrossRef	Add your published work(s) to your ORCID record	2015-10-06

Hi, we're Crossref. Our member publishers send us publication information (including ORCID iDs and DOIs), and we ensure that your work can be found, linked and cited. We would like to auto-update your ORCID record with information about these published work(s), starting today with those listed below, so you don't have to search for and add them manually, now or in the future. Please click 'Grant permissions' below to set this up.
