

Chapter 15: Nobody Got Hurt: Human Subjects, Institutional Review Boards and Ethics

Chapter 15 presents the history of research ethics. We will see how ethics govern our procedures and protect our human subjects from unnecessary and potentially damaging or unethical research. We will see what the procedures of Institutional Review Boards look like and how to anticipate and meet their concerns.