A note about this plot: while it is generally best practice to keep shifts together on the same page, the size of this cast and the number of people changing at the same time presented a unique problem. The SM team decided to split changes across two pages by keeping two principles in mind: (1) never split a group of people in a fast change requiring crew, (2) be sure to repeat the header on the next page and note that it was part of the previous change. This allowed crew to be sure to check on all relevant actors, but also kept the plot from becoming too unwieldy by having too many partially-filled pages!

Remember- knowing the rules lets you know when breaking them is for the best!
