

Model 10.1

TLAE's Transformative Art History Inquiry Model with Guiding Targets

I can study global artworks.
Analysis: I can inquire.	Informed speculation: I can support my interpretation(s) and hypothesis with facts.	Validation: I can present a convincing closing argument.
I can: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Develop initial questions to guide my analysis.</li> <li>• Classify an artwork's style.</li> <li>• Analyze icons.</li> <li>• Make comparisons.</li> <li>• Identify relationships.</li> <li>• Secure reliable primary and/or secondary art and literary sources.</li> <li>• Check for potential biases in literary sources.</li> <li>• Identify whose perspective(s) are presented in the data?</li> <li>• Identify context linking an artwork to a time or culture.</li> <li>• Recognize an artist's or a culture's media choice and its meaning.</li> <li>• Detect an artist's or a culture's aesthetic and philosophical preferences.</li> <li>• Look to internal and external verity.</li> <li>• Refer to provenance.</li> <li>• Secure factual information.</li> <li>• Modify my initial questions as necessary.</li> </ul>	I can: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Identify questions to guide my study based on my analysis of the artwork's possible meaning(s).</li> <li>• Use language to develop a clear hypothesis as a declarative statement.</li> <li>• Reexamine the artwork in question in support of my hypothesis.</li> <li>• Conduct further research and check for potential biases.</li> <li>• Apply factual knowledge from applicable artworks, literary sources, and my intuition to test my theory.</li> <li>• Incorporate relative context in support of my hypothesis.</li> <li>• Support, reject, or modify my hypothesis based on the evidence.</li> <li>• Present my argument in narrative form to produce a binding relationship between my data and hypothesis.</li> </ul>	I can: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Provide a logical summative interpretation based on facts.</li> <li>• Present a summative explanation validating my hypothesis.</li> <li>• Share possible answers using objective data.</li> <li>• Integrate my personal sensitivity toward the subject I support with evidence.</li> <li>• Identify the steps I took to remove potential biases.</li> <li>• Incorporate details to validate my position further.</li> <li>• Provide others with clear pathways to follow my inquiry methods.</li> </ul>
