Collect for Second Sunday after Epiphany: Almighty God, in Christ you make all things new: transform the poverty of our nature by the riches of your grace, and in the renewal of our lives make known your heavenly glory; through Jesus Christ your Son our Lord, who is alive and reigns with you, in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God now and for ever.

We pray for Peace in our increasingly troubled World

JOB VACANCIES - CHURCHWARDEN (2)

The Parish of Neston is in need of two new Churchwardens. These are to be elected at the Annual Meeting of Parishioners this year. If you are interested in this role, or just want more information, you are invited to have an informal chat with either of the current Churchwardens Marion and Terry.

Briefly the role of a Churchwarden (CW) is an ancient one. Given the passage of time it could be assumed the responsibilities of the CW would be clearly defined. However, they aren't.

The office of CW has three distinct aspects, but they do require, at times, a balancing act:

- The CWs of a parish are officers of the bishop;
- The CWs of a parish are the parish priest's principal collaborators;
- The CWs are the principal representatives of the laity on the Parochial Church Council (PCC).

A CW should under Canon Law 'discharge such duties as are by law and custom assigned to them'. This is very general. If in doubt as to where the responsibility lies, in any instance, then it's likely to be the responsibility of the CW. However, whilst the CW is responsible they don't necessarily have to do everything, just be experts at delegating.

As 'an officer of the bishop' means the CW has direct access to the bishop. They can if necessary bypass the vicar and go further up the line. It is hoped that this never has to happen.

The CWs 'shall be foremost in representing the laity, and in cooperating with the incumbent' means the CW should be a focal point for the laity, who might find it easier to speak to them than to the vicar. A CW must be approachable, known and respected. The CW also needs to maintain a good relationship with the vicar to ensure the flow of information in both directions.

In the same way the CW 'shall use their best endeavours by example and precept to encourage parishioners in the practice of true religion and promote unity and peace among them'. Promoting Unity and Peace is not easy at all times but worth striving for.

The CW 'shall also maintain order and decency in the church and churchyard, especially during the time of divine service'. Hopefully this responsibility will never need to be exercised.

CWs role legally also covers the responsibility for the church inventory, terrier, log book and the annual fabric report. These cover all the moveable objects, including the church silver; the fabric of the church, including the stained glass windows; routine checks and inspections, such as the gas boiler and fire alarms; all alterations, additions or repairs to the fabric of the church. All these need to be kept up to date and made available to the Archdeacon when requested.

Whilst this list appears endless, and it is, there is help from Deputy Wardens, sides-persons, building manager and the PCC. The Diocese provide two training days, on Saturdays, each year, a chance to meet other CWs and Church House personnel. These days will prove you are not alone in the role.

The best advice would be, if you think you can do it, is 'To make the role your own' and build a team.

CONGRATULATIONS!

On Monday 29th December a team from the Parish entered a quiz at the Hinderton Arms, calling themselves "Santa's Little Helpers". We won the quiz and were presented with a fabulous trophy 🏆. By the way we didn't take the team photo, which is why we only have half of Tony!!
