OUR LADY OF MOUNT CARMEL

Parish Newsletter

Sunday 7 February 2010 - Fifth Sunday of the Year

'Here I am, send Me'

Our Gospel today invites us to reflect on the call of the first disciples and our own personal calls to discipleship. We are told that Jesus is preaching and then we hear about the miraculous catch of fish. This is the preparation; Peter and the other future disciples listen to the word of God and have some personal, intimate experience of God's love and generosity symbolised by the enormous catch of fish. In other words they experience the reality and power of God's word – a reality and power that can be accepted or rejected but not ignored.

Peter and his companions were "completely overcome by the catch they had made". What may surprise us are the words of Peter "leave me Lord, I am a sinful man". Peter, despite being "completely overcome", is very tempted to reject the call of Jesus. His reason is his fear of facing up to his own sinfulness and accepting the implications of change and conversion. It would be much easier to use his sins and unworthiness as an excuse to reject the invitation that Jesus is giving.

Peter has had a very profound meeting with God, has received exceptional generosity from God and knows deep down that God is calling him to something different, new and challenging. However, Peter is overcome by fear, shame and guilt because of his past life. Peter is afraid of the implications, challenges and consequences of what Jesus is calling him to. This is a very familiar pattern, we find it in all the great vocation stories of scripture. We have a very good example in our first reading today. The prophet Isaiah says: "What a wretched state I am in! I am lost, for I am a man of unclean lips...." God replies: "See now, this has touched your lips, your sin is taken away, your iniquity is purged". The call of God is not an escape from our sinfulness but a facing up to the real truth of who we are. The pattern is something like this:

1. Hear the word or call of God.
2. The deep and painful realisation that one is a sinner, a sense of unworthiness, guilt and shame [this is the time that is most painful when many give up and walk away].
3. Accepting the truth and true repentance.
4. Saying yes to the call of God.

The prophet Isaiah can answer with strength and confidence: “Here I am, send me”.

This is certainly the experience of St Paul and he describes it to us in our second reading today in what could be called his spiritual autobiography: “I am the least of the Apostles, in fact, since I persecuted the Church of God, I hardly deserve the name apostle; but by God’s grace that is what I am, and the grace that he gave me has not been fruitless. On the contrary, I, or rather the grace of God that is in me, have worked harder than any of the others”.

Fr Matt Blake, Prior
