Sunday 31 May 2009 – Pentecost Sunday

Feast of Pentecost

“Each one bewildered to hear these men speaking his own language. They were amazed and astonished.... We hear them preaching in our own language about the marvels of God”. What was this experience like? Have you ever had this experience? It is not about whether the words spoken are English, Russian, French or Sanskrit, rather it is about how they are heard and understood. When we read or listen to the scriptures, when we listen to preaching or teaching about our faith, we usually hear it as if it is a foreign language, rarely does it speak to us in our inner thinking and understanding.

If we are truthful we must admit that we prefer it like this. We like our religion to be comforting, inspiring, safe and unthreatening. That is not how it is when the Holy Spirit speaks. Religion is not meant to be just comforting and inspiring (though there is nothing wrong with that), its real purpose is to change us. When the Holy Spirit is really heard “in our own language” then we have to change, we cannot not change, the energy and compulsion to change is just too strong to resist!

If we had read on a little further in the Acts of the Apostles, we would see this happening – repentance, forgiveness of sin, baptism, 3,000 baptisms that very day. All those people from many races cultures and languages were never the same again, their lives are changed forever. They hear the word of God in their minds, hearts, experience, culture and language. The word of God is no longer “foreign” but near, personal, intimate, real, powerful and life changing.

Let us listen to St Paul in our second reading today: “If you are guided by the Spirit you will be in no danger of yielding to self-indulgence”. In the rest of the passage Paul spells this out for us, he demonstrates the kind of change of life the Spirit brings about. If there is even a hint of the old life, then we are not living by the Spirit. If there is any self-indulgence in our attitudes, outlooks, speech, decisions, life styles, religious practice etc., then we are not yet hearing the Holy Spirit “in our own language”, there is still more to be done. Paul goes on to outline what the Church has come to call the “fruits of the Holy Spirit”. These are the characteristics of a person who is living by the Holy Spirit: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, trustfulness, gentleness and self-control. It takes a lot of sacrifice, repentance, pain, self-giving, facing of truth, prayer, listening, etc. to reach this. This is what our Christian faith calls us to, this is what living by the Holy Spirit means and it is the place to which those who hear the word of God “in their own language” feel compelled to go.

This is the Feast of Pentecost which we celebrate today, it is the most challenging and personally demanding of all the feasts of Christianity. It is also the most fundamental feast of Christianity; we miss the whole point of Jesus Christ if we turn a blind eye to what this feast is telling us.

If we are in any doubt, let us listen to the meaning and consequence of Paul’s final words: “Since the Spirit is our life, let us be directed by the Spirit”. This is a choice between life and death, we are alive when we choose to live by the Spirit, we are dead when we do not. Christianity gives us the greatest of all freedoms – the freedom to choose life or death. All self-indulgence is a choice for death. We know we have made the right choices when the “fruits” listed above are evident in our lives.

Fr Matt Blake, Prior

The Spirit

“The Spirit comes gently and makes Himself known by His fragrance. He is not felt as a burden for He is light, very light. Rays of light and knowledge stream before Him as He approaches. The Spirit comes with the tenderness of a true friend to save, to heal, to teach, to counsel, to strengthen and to console. The Spirit comes to enlighten the mind first of the one who receives Him, and then, through Him, the minds of others as well”.
