

OOIT

One day there will be justice for all the injustice
One day there will be peace at ease
One day the world will change
One day everything will change.
It has to change
I guess I hope it will change Nothing should be the same Do we really want to go on with this fate?
I hope I will see a new form of revolution through the eyes of the youth without it being a phase.
It's needed don't you think?
I think we have all been waiting for changes in a strange way

But weren't we scared of it?
But isn't it something that has to be (happening), to make difference in this cold place?
We aren't what the media paints us like

We are a beautiful art of cultural colors and it makes me warm.
We are the energy of our ancestors and our power comes from the heart.

It's from the knowledge that we carry to the art that we create and it's beautiful, can't you see?

"It's the history we keep and carry that shapes us to be the best version you will see"

One day I will look at the world and see different colors and a big imprint on the wall.

The wall will be named never became ever, that's the hope we need for the future, and the youth carries that without a doubt.

So, don't you want to hear what is going on in our minds?

Because one day we will be where you are and that day it will be different as a start.
Having no hope for the youth is strange, because we are the future in a stranger way.
So, listen to us before the gap that is created becomes bigger, we will all fall inside of it if we don't reconnect, because it's time.

We are all looking for better days to make the best of this fate, and that's a fact we can't escape.
One day, time will end, making us fall into a timeless end.
So, let's create together before the time Ends.
We don't have time to fight, because there is too much to make right.
We can reminisce everything that we did, learn from the mistakes we made and grow from the lesson that we learned.
So let's hope for changes and create..
