Dayak Blowpipe (Burneo) Tribal: Having metal spike to end fixed with basket weave 153cm without spike 175cm with. The weapon is used by inserting the projectile inside the pipe (known as a blowgun) and using the force created by one's breath to give the projectile momentum. Its propulsive power is limited by the user's respiratory muscles. Many cultures have used this weapon, but various indigenous peoples of South East Asia, the Amazon and Guiana regions of South America, and Guatemala in Central America are best known for its use.
Projectiles include seeds, clay pellets, and darts. Some cultures dip the tip of the darts in curare or other poisons in order to paralyze the target. Blowguns were very rarely used by these tribes as anti-personnel weapons, but primarily to hunt small game such as monkeys. North American Cherokees were known for making blowguns out of river cane to supplement their diet with rabbits and other small creatures.

In the First World War he was a pilot, then a flight commander and then a squadron commander flying light bombers on the Western Front. Lieut Alan Binnie ex RFC who had one arm as a result of being on the losing end of a fight with Lothar von Richthofen the Red Barons Brother but he still decided to wage their own war against the Japanese in WW2. Their mount was an unarmed Dragon Rapide, their weapon, hand grenades. While Pentland flew just above the New Guinea jungle the one armed Binnie would drop the hand grenades on any suspicious movement in the jungle. Pentland later wrote that he was always concerned that the one armed Binnie may drop one of the grenades in the aircraft. Pentland survived the war, but sadly Alan Binnie was executed by the Japanese after the aircraft he was a passenger in crashed. Binnie managed to avoid the Japanese for a few days but was eventually caught and executed.

Deeds That Thrill the Empire in 2 Volumes Foreword by Rt Hon the Earl of Derby: Condition overall worn with some damage to spines contents clean. 900pp Approx with 24 illus in colour &

936 in b/w illus plus index Sub-titled True Stories of the Most Glorious Acts of Heroism of the Empires Soldiers and Sailors during the Great War this collection of exploits on land, sea and in the air makes a fascinating, illustrated record. Here are stories recounting in graphic detail acts of gallantry or engagements at sea or in the air, each vividly pictured by artists especially commissioned to bring to life the actions described in the text. Most of them are accounts of individual gallantry, including forty VCs and nearly one hundred DCMs as well as feats that earned the DSO, MC or, in the case of the Indian Army, the IOM (Indian Order of Merit). But apart from these selected cases there are hundreds more illustrations, full plate and smaller, depicting other heroic acts The introduction, which contains illustrations of gallantry medals awarded by the Allies, explains that the men whose actions are described in these pages are chosen as representatives of their fellows. It goes on to say it is the epitaph of those who have laid down their lives in setting so bright an example, and it is a summons, from those who remain, to every fit man in the Empire to go and do likewise. All the events or deeds described occurred between the outbreak of war and the end of 1916, but they are not in chronological order, nor is there any other discernible pattern in the order in which they are presented. They cover all theatres where British, Dominion and Indian troops were involved - Western Front, Gallipoli, East Africa, Salonika, Mesopotamia and, of course, the high seas. One notable error is an illustration of Darwan Sing Negi, 1st Bn 39th Garhwal Rifles, winning the VC (p161); it describes him as the first Indian to be awarded the VC. He wasn't. That honour belonged to Sepoy (Private) Khudadad Khan, 129th Baluch Regiment, who had won his just over three weeks earlier (31 October 1914), also on the Western Front. When this book appeared in print conscription was in full swing and signs of war weariness were apparent. It is clear that this publication was intended as a morale booster, an appeal to patriotism as Lord Derby's foreword shows. It really is a gem and something of a gold mine for medal collectors and a potentially valuable source for the growing band of researchers into the records of those whose names appear on local war memorials. There is a remarkably comprehensive index with lists under various headings: names listed alphabetically; by nationality e.g. British, Australian, Canadian etc forces as well as enemy troops; by formations (corps, divisions etc); lists of RN and Merchant Marine ships; lists of German Navy and other enemy ships; aircraft and airships and a geographical index (2)

Professional Hand Coloured Victorian Photograph in Oak Frame by C. E. Clifford: Gentleman sitting dressed in Scottish attire with Blunderbuss to his side 9cm x 13.5cm in period Oak frame with C E Clifford Label to rear Note: William Clifford 1848, oil and colourman. C.E. Clifford 1849-1886, artists' colourman 1849-1876, photographic materials manufacturer 1857-1865, picture restorer from 1877; C.E. Clifford & Co from 1887, print sellers; C.E. Clifford & Co Ltd 1909-1924, fine art publishers, print sellers, frame makers, picture restorers. At 30 Piccadilly, London WC 1848-1887, 12 Piccadilly 1888-1891, 200 Piccadilly 1892-1894, 21 Haymarket 1895-1911, 12 Bury St, St James's 1911-1914, 3 Regent Place, Regent St 1914-1924.
Charles Clifford's grandfather was the sculptor, John Charles Felix Rossi and his father, Edward, was a grocer and oilman. Charles Edward Clifford (c.1823-1903) commenced trading as an artists' colourman in 1848. Canvases in the collection of the National Portrait Gallery bearing Clifford's stencil include William Salter's Sir Frederick.

Clifford was listed as an artists' colourman, manufacturer of photographic materials & chemicals, and gallery of watercolour drawings from 1858 to 1865, and thereafter as artists' colourman. He appears to have begun selling photographic materials in the late 1850s, publishing a catalogue in about 1863 (Illustrated Catalogue of Apparatus & Materials used in the Art of Photography manufactured and prepared by C.E. Clifford, Photographic Instrument Maker, Operative Chemist, and Artists' Colourman, with Catalogue of Materials for Oil Painting, appended to a Winsor & Newton handbook, J. Edwards (ed.), The Art of Landscape Painting in Oil Colours, 17th ed., 1863). In 1870 he advertised as a colourman and additionally as a carver, gilder, looking glass and picture frame maker and as Agent for Winsor & Newton's and Newman's Colours (The Artists' Directory for June 1870).

Clifford changed tack again, succeeding E. Fa'son Watson as a picture restorer in 1877 (notice announcing succession, dated 19 February 1877, copy on National Portrait Gallery files, RP 740). This notice appeared on the reverse side of a letter heading describing Clifford as picture restorer and as Carver, Gilder, Print seller, and Artists' Colourman, to the Royal and Imperial Families of England, France, Germany, Austria, Spain, and Brazil, an unusual claim to international connections which also appeared on his trade label (example repr. Katlan 1992 p.458).

Clifford was listed in censuses in 1861 at 18 Clifton Road East as artists' colourman, age 38, with wife Eliza, and in 1871 at Kilburn Lodge, Middlesex, as Artists Repository, employing five men and two boys; he was still at this address in 1881 but now a picture restorer, artist (& print seller), with his wife and also three daughters age 23, 21 and 20 and two sons age 22 and 17. He died in Portsmouth, age 82, in 1903, leaving an estate worth £9,997. The artist Edward C. Clifford (1858-1910) was his son.

Clifford or most probably his successor, trading as C.E. Clifford & Co, turned to print publishing, issuing prints 1887-1907 (The Year's Art 1888-1908). The business was carried on by William Batley until it was incorporated as C.E. Clifford & Co Ltd in 1909 (National Archives, BT 31/19040/105453). It advertised as fine art publishers and print sellers (The Year's Art 1913) and continued until voluntarily wound up in 1924

Benjamin Godfrey Windus (1790-1867) was a coach maker who lived in Tottenham, London. From 1820, he assembled an important collection of Turner watercolours, numbering more than fifty by 1834: this was memorialised in a watercolour depiction of his library, commissioned from John Scarlett Davis in 1835 (British Museum). He also collected drawings by David Wilkie and was later a supporter of the Pre-Raphaelites. This a very competent painting that has not been researched Turner Travelled France and Switzerland doing Paintings to pay his way (Is this one of those Paintings?)
