Important points

- We offer a flexible LLM structure and a range of up to twenty different taught modules (subject to viable student numbers) and there are normally ten named pathways, which you can opt to study: LLM in Business Law, LLM in International Commercial Law, LLM in Governance, Risk Management and Compliance, LLM in IT Law and Policy, LLM in Intellectual Property and Data Protection Law, LLM in International Law, LLM in International Financial Law, LLM in International Development Law, LLM in International Human Rights Law, LLM in Energy Law and the Environment.
- If you choose to study a named pathway then you will study two compulsory modules (one each semester) as well as two options (one each semester). There is also the option to study for a Joint Pathway, (where you study the two compulsory modules from the two similar named pathways) to give you four modules of study. Alternatively, you can study for a general LLM in Law, which allows you a choice of four modules, which do not create pathways, so that you can study areas of law of particular interest to you.
- You can commence your studies in either September (Semester A) or January (Semester B) of each year.
