A programme specification is a collection of key information about a programme of study (or course). It identifies the aims and learning outcomes of the programme, lists the modules that make up each stage (or year) of the programme, and the teaching, learning and assessment methods used by teaching staff. It also describes the structure of the programme, its progression requirements and any programme-specific regulations. This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right programme of study, to current students on the programme, and to staff teaching and administering the programme.

A. Programme Rationale

This programme is designed as a generalist master programme, based on any discipline with a first degree but with little or no work experience aimed at preparing individuals for employment either related to their first-degree discipline or in a management role. The programme is designed to develop master's level knowledge and skills in business and management subjects, to enhance learners' competence, ability and employability by building on their first degree. The emphasis of the programme is on leadership through strategic management. Additionally, there is a distinctive, action-based professional orientation to the curriculum. Graduates will develop a sound understanding of business/organisational contexts and thus should be able to make an early and significant contribution to their employer. The programme provides critical and applied study of contemporary and cutting-edge management theory, delivered through real business problems.

The MBA journey begins through engagement with the knowledge, understanding and critical awareness of the essential functions and processes of business enterprises, their diverse nature and governance, and the ethical dilemmas their senior managers face as they consider the complex external environments within which the organisations operate. In a curriculum informed by research active faculty, the core business areas of human resources management, financial management, strategic management, operations and marketing include coverage of diversity, business ethics, corporate governance, evolutionary economics, entrepreneurial mindsets and digital media.

The curriculum is underpinned throughout by the academic research, consultancy and professional practice undertaken by the School's researchers. Through several modules and peripheral activities, students have the opportunity to engage and collaborate with business and / or social enterprises. Throughout the programme, MBA students will benefit from guest lectures delivered by business practitioners as well as networking opportunities with MBA Alumni and business associates.

B. Educational Aims of the Programme

The programme has been devised in accordance with the University's graduate attributes of programmes of study as set out in UPR TL03.
This programme aims to:

• deliver a contemporary, critical, integrated and applied programme of study at postgraduate level within the area of Business and Management;
• equip students with the analytical and personal skills to deal with complex issues systematically, creatively, and responsibly, and make sound judgements in the absence of complete data;
• offer opportunities for students to demonstrate leadership and entrepreneurship in tackling and solving problems, and to act autonomously in planning and implementing tasks at a professional or equivalent level;
• provide theoretical grounding in approaches to research, supporting a practical understanding of how established research methods can be applied to develop and interpret knowledge of direct relevance to the challenges faced by both multinational corporations and SMEs.

C. Intended Learning Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills and other attributes in the following areas. The programme outcomes are referenced the Frameworks for Higher Education Qualifications of UK Degree-Awarding Bodies (2014) and relate to the typical student. Additionally, the SEEC Credit Level Descriptors for Further and Higher Education (2016) have been used as a guiding framework for curriculum design.

Knowledge and Understanding:

Teaching/learning methods & strategies

A1 - Analyse a broad range of organisations and the external context within which they operate

A2 – Assess the inter-relatedness of internal aspects of organisations

A3 – Evaluate how organisations may innovate, create value, manage financial and operational risk and strategically respond to forces and changes in the environment

A4 – Research and analyse the pervasive debates, issues and new insights affecting organisations

A5 – Critically examine theories of leadership and strategy, evaluating their relationship to each other, and their influence on the organisation

A6 – Understand and use different research approaches, qualitative and quantitative business research methods and analytical tools for the investigation of business issues

Knowledge and understanding are assessed through a range of assessment techniques. At Stage One the emphasis is on developing broad knowledge and understanding of business survival in complex environments, the tools, models and techniques for their analyses and development of new insights and critical awareness. Assessment will thus be predominantly ‘live’ problem or case study orientated with emphasis on testing the acquisition of core knowledge and its application through reports, essays, closed-book timed assessment, and reflective writing.

Stage Two will have greater emphasis on integration of applications of theoretical perspectives, leadership and entrepreneurship on critical evaluation of live projects. Assessments will vary from critical case reports, written and oral presentation of business cases, and reflective analysis.

A6 is specifically supported in the Strategic Management Research and Executive Career and Professional Development modules and
Each stage will require a combination of assessments with emphasis on applying integrated knowledge and understanding to critical application, synthesis and integration.
