

Global Sales Manager

As global sales manager you will lead a team of three people supporting sales activities (e.g. customer service, logistics and marketing). Amongst some of BioPorto Diagnostics customers, are the biggest life science players in the field.

The global sales managers role and responsibility will be a combination of continuously improve current sales and at the same time implementing strategic initiatives which can accelerate customer value.

Additionally, collaboration with other departments like production, are important to the position. The global sales manager reports directly to the COO. An ideal profile would be 3-5 years sales background from the life-science industry.

Expected travel activity will be 20-30 days annually.

Contact: Please forward a one-page application to Jan Kuhlmann, COO – jk@bioporto.com, as soon as possible. Applicants will be considered on a rolling basis.