Caring for your Balloons & The Environment...

Unfortunately balloons are risky as they are not bullet proof and can pop for no particular reason. To help you ensure your balloon display lasts much longer please follow these instructions to avoid any disappointment.

- Helium gas is very sensitive to extreme temperature changes therefore do not leave them in a hot car or out in the sunlight or next to the radiator, which can cause them to expand and burst. For best results keep your balloons indoors in a climate controlled location.
- In the cold air they will appear to deflate, warm air should expand them again.
- Float times of your balloons vary greatly based on factors such as latex quality, humidity temperature and altitude. Balloons typically float for half as long in hot, humid weather.
- Latex balloons deflate faster than foil or bubble balloons. Latex is a porous material and it breathes. With helium being the second smallest atom, it finds its way through those pores and exits the balloon therefore causing the balloon to continuously shrink. We do treat all our latex balloons with a hi-float this giving the latex a extending float time.
- Latex balloons are biodegradable, it is normal that they oxidation & become cloudy over time as they degrade. Latex balloons are affected by temperatures, bright lights and humidity this causing them to start to fade
- Be careful carrying balloons, they are sensitive to sharp objects and rough handling, carry them at the base only
- Always supervise children under 8 years with balloons
- Do not inhale helium gas from the balloon
- Do not release helium filled foil balloons into the atmosphere as they are not biodegradable.
- When finished with, cut balloon with a pair of scissors and dispose of the balloon in the recycling bin.
