Vintage Afternoon Tea Wedding Package

The tradition of the afternoon tea dates back to the 18th Century when one of Queen Victoria's ladies-in-waiting,

Anna Stanhope (the Duchess of Bedford) complained of a little 'sinking feeling' at about four o'clock in the afternoon.

To revive herself, the Duchess had her servants bring her a pot of tea and a few breadstuffs and then soon began inviting her friends to join her for her additional meal in her room at Belvoir Castle.

The traditional afternoon tea was born - and has become a British institution.

Whilst we can't promise liveried footmen we can offer a little luxury & indulgence which will help to make your special day a very memorable one.
