

NATIONAL TRUST FOR SCOTLAND MEDIA RELEASE

27 November 2018

Mrs Claus takes up residence at Pollok House

Mrs Claus arrives at the National Trust for Scotland's Pollok House on Saturday 1 December, for a month of merriment.

The beautiful country house which stands in Pollok Country Park will be decked out in festive splendour, as Mrs Claus calls Pollok House home until 24 December.

Mrs Claus will meet with children, hear their Christmas wishes and give a small gift as the festive season gets underway.

Lynne Watson, Visitor Services Manager Events Glasgow said: "Our visitors can enjoy a truly magical family Christmas experience when they bring their children to meet the award-winning Mrs Claus! They'll also be able to get into the festive spirit as they wander round the house which has been decorated from top to toe by our dedicated volunteers and staff."

The Edwardian Kitchen café will be serving up some tasty festive treats and the gift shop is packed full of stocking fillers and gifts for those still looking for the perfect present.

Mrs Claus will be visiting Pollok House from 1 – 24 December. Advance booking is essential – for tickets and price information visit www.nts.org.uk.
