

CAMRA's advice for going back to the pub in Wales

As pubs reopen, we're all looking forward to getting back to our locals, having a pint and enjoying the social aspects of pub going. Things are going to look and feel a little different.

That's why we've put together our advice on what to expect, and how you can get back to the pub responsibly and safely.

Which pubs you can go to:

- As of 3rd August, both indoor and outdoor space in pubs will be open.

Who you can go to the pub with:

- For the time being, you can only use indoor space in pubs with people from your household or your extended household group.
- You can meet with people outside your household/extended household group when sitting outside, as long as there are no more than 30 people in your group.
- You will still need to maintain a 2metre distance between you and someone outside of your household.

What you should expect:

- No standing, unless at tall tables.
- In most circumstances, order and be served at your table.
- To see signs telling you where to go and how to use the pub's outdoor space safely.
- For limits on those numbers of people using outside space.
- To give some details like your name and a phone number to help with contact tracing.
- For the moment, no music or live entertainment and TVs to be on mute or low volume.
- If the weather takes a turn for the worse, you might not be allowed to shelter inside.

You can help by:

- Listening to the staff and following instructions on signs
- Waiting patiently in queues
- Washing your hands or using hand sanitising stations - especially when you arrive and leave, or use the toilets
- Ordering remotely where you can – whether through an app or website
- Staying in your allocated seating area as much as possible
- Using contactless payments where possible

A few do's and don'ts

- Do go back to the pub where you can – pubs need our custom to help them through this difficult time
- Do plan ahead and book in advance where possible

CAMRA's advice for going back to the pub in Wales

- Don't come to the pub if you, or someone in your household or support bubble has symptoms of COVID-19 – stay at home and follow NHS advice
